

A hand-drawn illustration of a bowl of stew. The bowl is a simple circle with a thick outline. Inside the bowl, there are several concentric circles representing the surface of the stew. A spoon is drawn at the top of the bowl, with its handle extending to the right and its bowl resting on the left side of the stew. The word "stew" is written in a simple, lowercase font in the center of the bowl.

stew

'All I have got is what I have not got'

a patient of
D.W. Winnicott

"Transitional Objects & Transitional Phenomena," 1951

I'm mad at you

a.

7

I don't know you

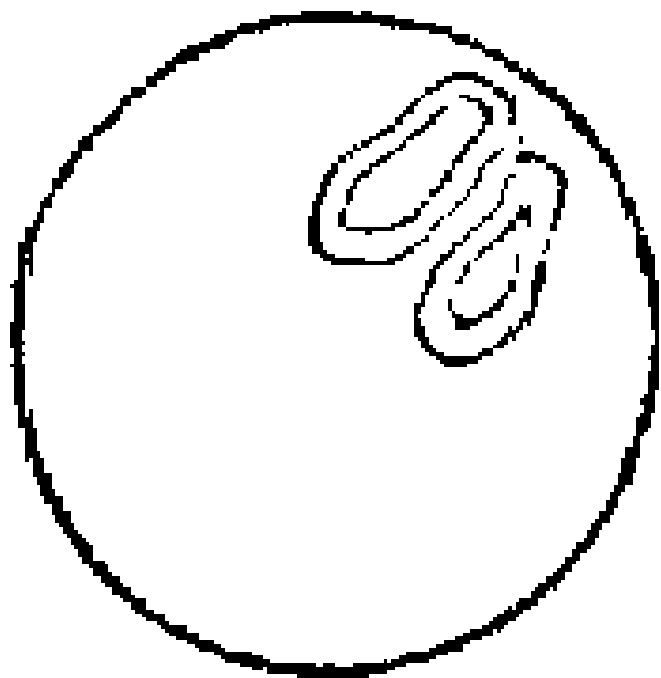

It's been so long

c

a

I don't remember

e.

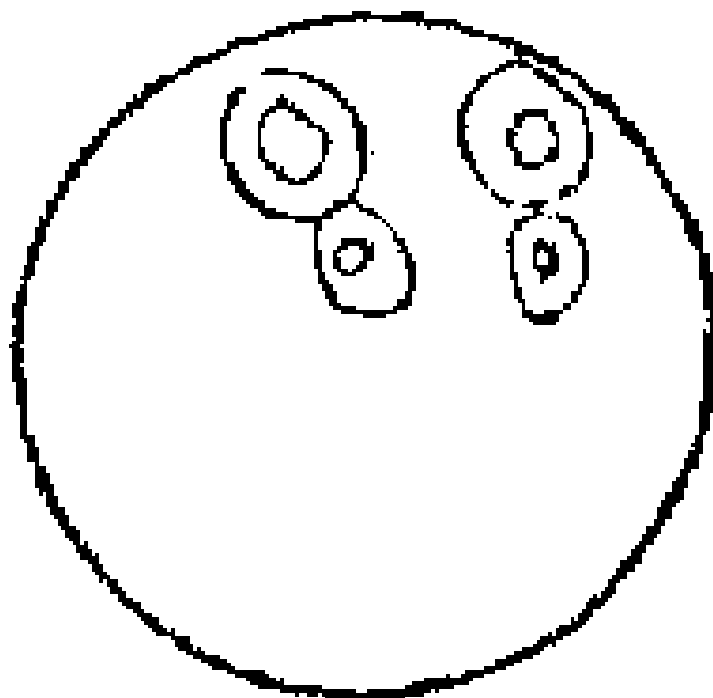

the worst parts of you

little onions

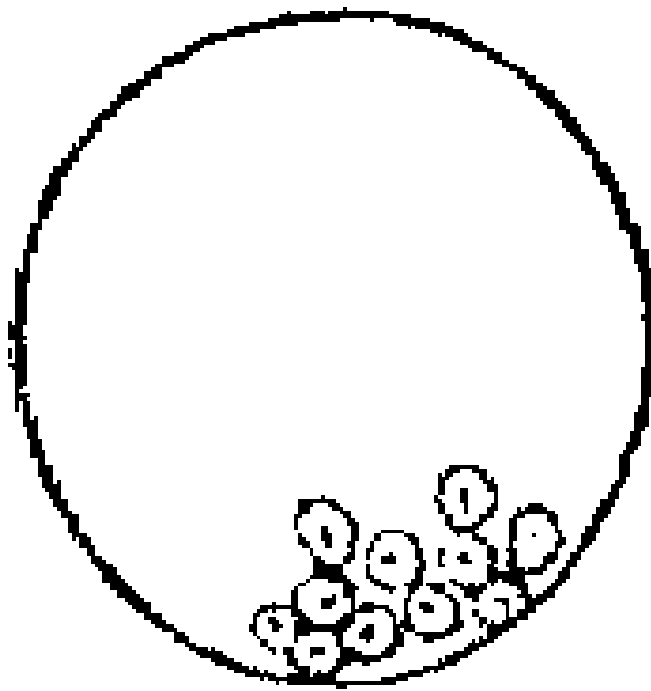

go in whole

g.

h.

come out so sweet

TWL 2024